On This That and the Other

Congratulations to Spanish Fort on the opening of its new post office Wednesday Nov. 1st. According to George Fuller, who has Spanish Fort history down pat, this is the first post office established at Spanish Fort, except a temporary facility there for both the Confederacy and Union Armies during the War Between the States. Know it will be of great value to this fast growing community to have a post office, for Fairhope had a like experience way back there in 1895. Prior to that time mail had to be transported from the Battles Post office.
